Below we will outline the hiring process for you to have a better understanding of what to expect. Applying Online The first thing you should do is visit Kroger's website: . From there, you'll need to create an account to be able to review the positions available within the company. Once you've selected the one you're interested in, fill in the necessary information such as contacts, education, work experience, gender, race, and so on. Also, you will be asked to complete a series of pre-employment questions such as the legal right to work in the US, age, availability, tax credits, and criminal history. In some cases, you will have the option to upload your resume/CV as a simple Word document or PDF; and reference letters. However, this is not necessarily necessary and will not affect your chances of getting a job. The Employment Assessment Test at Kroger After you submit an application on Kroger, you will be directed to the employment test. This consists of a series of statements with multiple choice answers. For each question, you will be given four possible solutions: Strongly Agree, Agree, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree. This test is nothing to worry about, since most questions can be answered using your common sense. In some cases, assessments can include situational-based questions to assess your skills and competencies. More often than not, these scenarios are job specific. So, try your best to imagine what would be the most efficient way to solve the problem. Kroger (Kroger) Tests include: Personality Test, SJT, Hogan, Numerical, verbal and Mechanical Aptitude Test Interview Question on Kroger if you look like a fit for the job, you will be contacted to schedule a live interview. Typically, such meetings consist of top four interviews with store managers or directors. Expect the usual questions, such as: Why would you want to work at Kroger? Where do you see yourself in 5 years? Tell me about a time where you had to deal with angry customers? How will you manage arguments with coworker? Typically, interviews don't last more than 40 minutes. Thus, bring your A-game and improve yourself the best. Background Check & Drug Tests Before renting, you must pass a drug test. Believe it or not, this is where most candidates fail. Therefore, do not apply if you think you will not be able to pass the test. In addition, the company will conduct a thorough background check to ensure you are suitable for the position. Keep in mind, however, that it usually takes a week for the results to come back, so don't worry if you don't get contacted immediately! Orientation and Training If you pass a drug test and background check, you will be contacted to help with orientation and start your training. Typically, two or three other new employees will accompany you through the process. Depending on the job, orientation can take anything from one day to a week.
